

THE STORY OF LOCATELLI'S PIZZA

Locatelli's Pizza first opened its doors in Cypress, Texas October 1st 2003. The founders, Adam & Katie Womack had been infused with the idea of operating a pizza business by Adam's older brother Paul. They had to pause and give long thought to being a husband and wife team working together 16 hours a day, 6 days a week.

With visions of being featured on an episode of Divorce Court, coupled with friends and family placing bets as to which would last longer, the business or the marriage, they decided to "press" on and begun to dig through the Womack Family recipe vault where they found a pizza dough recipe on a tattered index card from 1956 written by Adam's Grandmother Rho Rho along with several tried and true specialties from Adam's mother's kitchen.

Adam & Katie were inspired by this find and spent close to one year in their own kitchen relentlessly experimenting with recipes until they had the taste they were seeking and Locatelli's Menu was born.

They tested the menu by catering neighborhood parties and other functions which confirmed that their recipes and efforts were on the mark. Then Adam's father, being so impressed with the Pizza, offered to finance the opening of a start-up restaurant. Locatelli's Pizza was on its way. What ensued for the next 18 months was that Locatelli's was going largely unnoticed. However in 2005 Mother Nature in the form of Hurricane Rita came to town changing things forever. Recall that Hurricane Katrina had just hit New Orleans and people were naturally alarmed and fearful by what Hurricane Rita might bring.

As area businesses were closing and people were evacuating in anticipation of the storm, Adam & Katie kept doing what they had been for the last 18 months. When the storm threat had passed (missing Houston all together) what remained were hordes of hungry people and no open restaurants or stores...except Locatelli's Pizza. With a skeleton crew and limited menu, Locatelli's opened that "day after" to a line of people stretching from the front door to beyond the end of the building. All the food that had been prepared for the day's business sold out in three hours...a trend that continued for three more days. Business changed forever in those three days and more importantly, the word was out.

We want to thank each and every one of our loyal customers. Serving you has been our pleasure...a pleasure we look forward to continuing for many years.
